ROUNDERS

Given Stiff Sentences by the Mayor in Police Court and Promised the Full Limit of the Law if They Were Found Guilty Again Soon.

Two plain drunks were given stiff sentences at Friday morning's session of police court by Mayor Crila. They were John Oldby and Fred, alias Phil, Callahan. John had been up before the mayor some three or four times within the past ten days for drunkenness and the mayor said he was getting tired of the thing. Callahan had been arrested for drunkenness each day regularly for the past four days. The mayor sentenced them to jail for ten days each and told them that if they were brought before him again for being drunk that he would let them have the full limit of the law. One other plain drunk was sent over for five days in default of the payment of a five dollar fine.

PICTURE

Is Now on Exhibition at the Parsons-Souders Big Department Store—
Is Valued at $10,000.

Now you see it—now you don't—rub your eyes in amazement—the canvass is the same—but the picture is not.

Look at it again—the original society queen is once more in her box at the opera—robed in a gorgeous evening gown which brings out the exquisite flesh tints of her beautifully carved neck and shoulders—her face is aglow with delight—the lovely auburn hair shimmers beneath the lights of the theatre—and in her coiffure nestle beautiful white roses—but as you look a magical change takes place.

The scene changes—you see a fascinating Parisienne in her boudoir—the evening gown has slipped from the ivory shoulders in a misty instant—her wraps have disappeared and exquisite French lingerie appears instead—the dainty patterns of the laces—the richness of the ribbons—the sheer, soft cambrics are just as real as the gown and wraps of a moment before. The once golden auburn hair is now sunlit gold; ornamented with brilliant red Jacquemont roses.
Startling as is the change—magical as is the metamorphose—you may examine the canvass closely as you will—there is not discernible even a brush mark of the first picture!

It is a triumph for Boulay—the great French artist, chemist and seamer!

His paintings have been seen in but few cities of America.

Mr. A. Weingarten, of Weingarten Bros., New York, makers of the famous W. B. and La Vida corsets was in Paris and among the privileged few whom Boulay invited to his atelier for a first view of his first magical picture, rumors of which had been arousing the curiosity of Paris.

Mr. Weingarten, as is well known, is an art lover of international fame—and before he left Boulay's studio he arranged at tremendous cost, to have several similar pictures prepared for exhibition in America.

Through the courtesy of Weingarten Bros. it is now on exhibition to-night in the west show window of the Parsons-Souders Company store, Jacobs building, 224-226 Main street, and all are invited to see it.

It defies explanation!
It mystifies—it delights—it will bring new theories into laws of art and science.

In conversation with Mr. Souders, of the Parsons-Souders Company, he says he saw this magnificent picture on display at the Great Fashion Show, New York, during the winter and was delighted with it and was instrumental in bringing it to Clarksburg.

Free exhibition every night, 5.30 to 10 o'clock, for one week, beginning tonight. During the day it can be seen in their store.
